

ServSafe Cold Call Script

For ServSafe Proctors and Instructors — foodsafetymadeeasy.com

THE OPENING

"Hi, is [the owner/manager] available? ... Hi, my name is [Name], I'm a local ServSafe instructor. I help restaurants get their staff certified — quick, easy, I come to you. Do you have anyone who needs certification or is coming up on a renewal?"

Contact Name: _____

RESPONSES

A — "Yes, we do."

"Great, [Contact Name]. I can set up a session for as few as one person or a full group. I come to you, I teach the class, and I give the exam — all in one session. My fee is [your fee] per person. When would be a good time to get something on the calendar?"

B — "No, I don't think so."

"No problem. Just so you know — ServSafe certification expires every five years, so it sneaks up on people. Can I send you a quick email with my info so you have it when the time comes?"

→ If yes: "Perfect. What's the best email for you?"

→ If no: "Understood. Have a great day."

C — "I don't have time right now."

"I completely understand. The good news is I handle everything — your staff doesn't go anywhere, I come to you. The only thing I need is a date that works. Can I follow up with you in a couple weeks when things settle down?"

→ If yes: "Perfect. Is email or phone better for you?"

→ If no: "No problem at all. Have a great day."

D — "Not right now, but soon."

"That's perfect timing actually. It takes a little lead time to get everything scheduled, so reaching out now puts you in a great spot. What's coming up — do you have a rough timeframe in mind?"

→ If they give a timeframe: "Got it. Let me follow up with you [two weeks before that]. What's the best way to reach you?"

→ If vague: "No problem — can I check back with you in a month? What's the best email or number?"

E — "We can't afford it right now."

"I understand — these expenses usually aren't planned for. But one of the ways I can actually save you money is time. I come to you, so you don't have to pay to send someone to a class across town or lose them for a full day. Your staff stays on site, gets certified, and gets back to work. And having at least one certified manager isn't optional — it's a health inspection requirement. I'd hate for you to fail an inspection over something we could have taken care of. My fee is [your fee] per person. Can I follow up with you in a month or two when the timing might work better?"

→ If yes: "Perfect. Email or phone?"

→ If no: "No problem. Have a great day."

F — "I don't really understand the process."

"That's actually the most common thing I hear — the ServSafe website is confusing and most people don't know where to start. That's why I exist. You don't have to figure any of it out. You tell me how many people need to get certified, I handle everything from there — the materials, the class, the exam. All you do is show up. Can I send you a quick email that explains how it works?"

→ If yes: "Perfect. What's the best email for you?"

→ If no: "No problem — if you ever have questions I'm local and easy to reach. Have a great day."

G — "We already use someone else."

"That's great — glad someone is taking care of it. Can I ask, are they local? ... The reason I ask is a lot of places use whoever they can find, and sometimes that means waiting weeks for availability. I'm local, flexible on scheduling, and I can usually turn things around pretty quickly. I'm not looking to replace anyone — but if you ever need a backup or your person isn't available, I'd love to be your plan B. Can I send you my contact info just in case?"

→ If yes: "Perfect. What's the best email?"

→ If no: "No problem. Have a great day."
